Teachers Visit AMS Guidance Office

The counselors at Appomattox Middle School invite the teachers to visit the Guidance Office during their planning periods this week in order to discuss the guidance and counseling program for 1979-80. Teacher get-acquainted groups are another effort on the part of counselors to familiarize parents, students, and staff with guidance services available to them. A federally funded Title IV-C career guidance program is in its third year in grades 7-12. Counselors at Appomattox Middle School are Victor Meadows, 8th grade; and Bolling Carter, 7th grade. Pictured above are Mrs. Geraldine Clark, Mrs. Hesteine Foster, principal, Mrs. Bolling Carter, counselor; and Miss Brenda Hamlett.

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS

A good way to keep baby's nails clean, many mothers have found, is to put a small, floating nail brush in the tub. Whenever your youngster grabs for it, it will help scrub his nails.

A good way to keep babies and others safe from the contents of the medicine cabinet is to have a cabinet with a safety-angled top and adult catch from Mothercare, retailing specialists for mothers-to-be, babies and children under five.

* * *

A good way to help a baby learn to talk, doctors say, is to use moderate tones and clear-cut speech. Loud sounds can confuse young children.

* * *

A good way to send a gift to a baby or a mother-to-be, many people have found, is to get a Mothercare gift certificate from Mothercare, P.O. Box 238, Parsippany, New Jersey 07054.

CANCER Answer line

American Cancer Society

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

A police officer asks: "What diseases are linked with asbestos exposure for people who work with it in industry?"

ANSWER line: Many workers exposed to asbestos will encounter no problems. However; others have a health risk depending on how much asbestos exposure occurred and for how long this exposure took place. Several diseases have been linked to concentrated asbestos dust exposure. These include lung cancer; asbestosis, a chronic lung problem that can lead to shortness of breath and lung damage; mesothelioma, a rare cancer of the lining of the chest and abdomen; and cancers of other parts of the body including the esophagus, stomach, and colorectal tract. While workers who have been exposed to asbestos are at higher than normal risk of developing asbestos-related diseases, other factors can increase that risk. For example, asbestos workers who are also cigarette smokers increase their lung cancer risk tremendously – by as much as 30 to 90 times the risk for asbestos workers who do not smoke.

A woman explains: "My mother and some of my aunts want to learn about cancer but they need information in Spanish. Where can I get it for them?"

ANSWER line: Your local American Cancer Society Unit has several leaflets of helpful information in Spanish which are offered to the public free of charge. Of particular interest to your family might be "Cancer Facts for Women," "When a Woman Smokes" and "Got a Few Minutes?" (a leaflet which teaches breast self-examination, an important cancer safeguard). Information in Spanish is available for men too.

A marketing analyst writes: "My mother died of melanoma and I am worried about getting the same disease. Can you give me a complete list of warning signals?"

ANSWER line: Malignant melanoma is a rare form of skin cancer. In general, you should be suspicious of any pigmented skin area, for example a mole, that gets darker, larger, bleeds or becomes a sore that does not heal, or of any skin disturbance that has a variegated color (shades of red, white or even blue in a black or brown skin mark). An irregular surface or border are additional warning signals. If at any time you notice anything unusual, you should check with your physician. A skin change does not mean that you have cancer – there are other reasons for skin changes – but it does mean that you should have a diagnosis.

In the rush of spring and summer activities, I failed to call to your attention the aquatic weed control demonstration on the Peggy Jordon Pond just east of Appomattox on U.S. 460. This pond had a heavy infestation of Potamogeton. So heavy was the infestation that fishing was nearly impossible. The pond was treated with pelleted Hydout. As you drive by, the results are obvious. We got beautiful control!

There were 275 aborted calves examined at the North Dakota Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory between last November and mid-April this year. In 31% (85 of 275) of the cases the cause of the abortion was determined.

Where the cause was confirmed, IBR was the disease 55% of the time.

Obviously IBR is the most important infectious cause of abortion diagnosed in North Dakota.

A review of the herd health program showed that only 7% of the cows in herds where abortion occurred had been vaccinated against IBR. Six abortions occurred in vaccinated herds and only two of these were diagnosed as IBR.

This data tends to substantiate what we have been promoting for some time–vaccinate cows and calves annually against IBR. This disease is causing more losses than most give it credit. Vaccination is simple to administer–but you do need catch facilities.

It's time to fertilize the lawn. Cool season lawn grasses like Bluegrass and Ky 31 Fescue require 3 to 4 ½ pounds of nitrogen and 1 to 1½ pounds of p and k. All the p and k can be put down at on time. The same can be said for N if you select a nitrate form in which 50% or more of the nitrogen is water insoluable (70% or more of the total nitrogen derived from urea formaldehyde). If you choose this form of nitrogen, the costs may be greater than you wish to pay–particularly if you have a medium to large lawn.

If you want a less costly nitrgren source, it will mean several applications. If it is all applied at one time the nitrogen would burn–even kill the sod. The first treatment should be applied now and if 34% ammonium nitrate is used, use at rate of 3 to 4 ½ pounds per 1000 square feet. Between October 1 and November 15, apply 15 pounds 10-10-10 per thousand square feet and between December 1 and 15 again apply 3 to 4½ pounds ammonium nitrate.

There will be a demonstration solar energy project in cooperation with Dennis Torrence. This is one of ten locations that will serve as a demonstration of solar energy in dairy, swine and poultry operations in Virginia. Hopefully equipment will be purchased this month and it will become operational in October.

Nominations for the October 4 Lynchburg Feeder Cattle Sale are due September 13.
